

Night-Night, Forest Friends

by Annie Bach

The sun is low, the sky is red.
Our forest friends all head to bed.

Papa rabbit whispers, "Hush,"
and tucks his babies into beds of brush.

In their den, so safe and deep,
bears rock their tiny cub to sleep.

Mama doe kisses her sleepy fawns
who curl up with enormous yawns.

In a hollow, warm and snug,
the squirrels share a bedtime hug.

Nestled high
above the ground,
robins rest,
safe and sound.

Huddled under faint moonlight,
little wood frogs snuggle tight.

Deep beneath the forest floor,
chipmunks softly snooze and snore.

Foxes let out weary sighs,
stretch their paws,
and close their eyes.

The woods are hushed,
there's not a peep.
Our forest friends
are fast asleep.

Up above, with glowing eyes,
an owl hoots a lullaby.

HOOOOO

Night-night, friends,
the day is done.

We'll see you in the morning sun.

The sun is setting, and all
are getting ready for bed.
