

The king who could not do without his servant

Once upon a time
King had a young servant. He was there from his childhood. Everyday
he worked very hard to make sure that the king was comfortable. The king never even noticed him, as his work seemed unimportant for the king.

One day this man dropped glass vase while the king was sleeping. The noise woke up the king and got very angry. "Get out of my sight!" he shouted and never come back." The poor man cried for a while, but the king ignored him. So he left the palace.

The king's servant had worked with him whole his life and now he had no idea where to go. So he went to the minister and told him the whole story. "Come with me and stay a few days with us. The king will call you back on his own." The young went and stayed with the minister.

The king got a
new servant,
but things
were never
the same.

Every thing
something or other went wrong.

The king remembered his old servant but he would not call him back as he was too proud. The minister saw all this and then he asked the king, "What's the matter your highness? Why are you so disturbed?"

"So many small things are going wrong. No one here knows how to look after me anymore", he said. "Perhaps you should get your old servant back", said the minister. "How can I call him back? I am a king!", King said. "Well", asked the minister, "what if he comes back to you?". "That'll be nice", replied the king, "I promise I will never throw him out in anger again. I'm sorry that I acted hastily."

The servant
came back and the king
was happy
once again!

There are times we get angry but we must calm down and
not react to anger.
