

The Dog That Got Angry

One day a bad tempered dog crossed a bridge on a huge river. He used to get angry very easily.

While he was crossing the river, he looked down into the water. He saw his own reflection in the water.

The dog was not so clever and he thought there was another dog in the river.

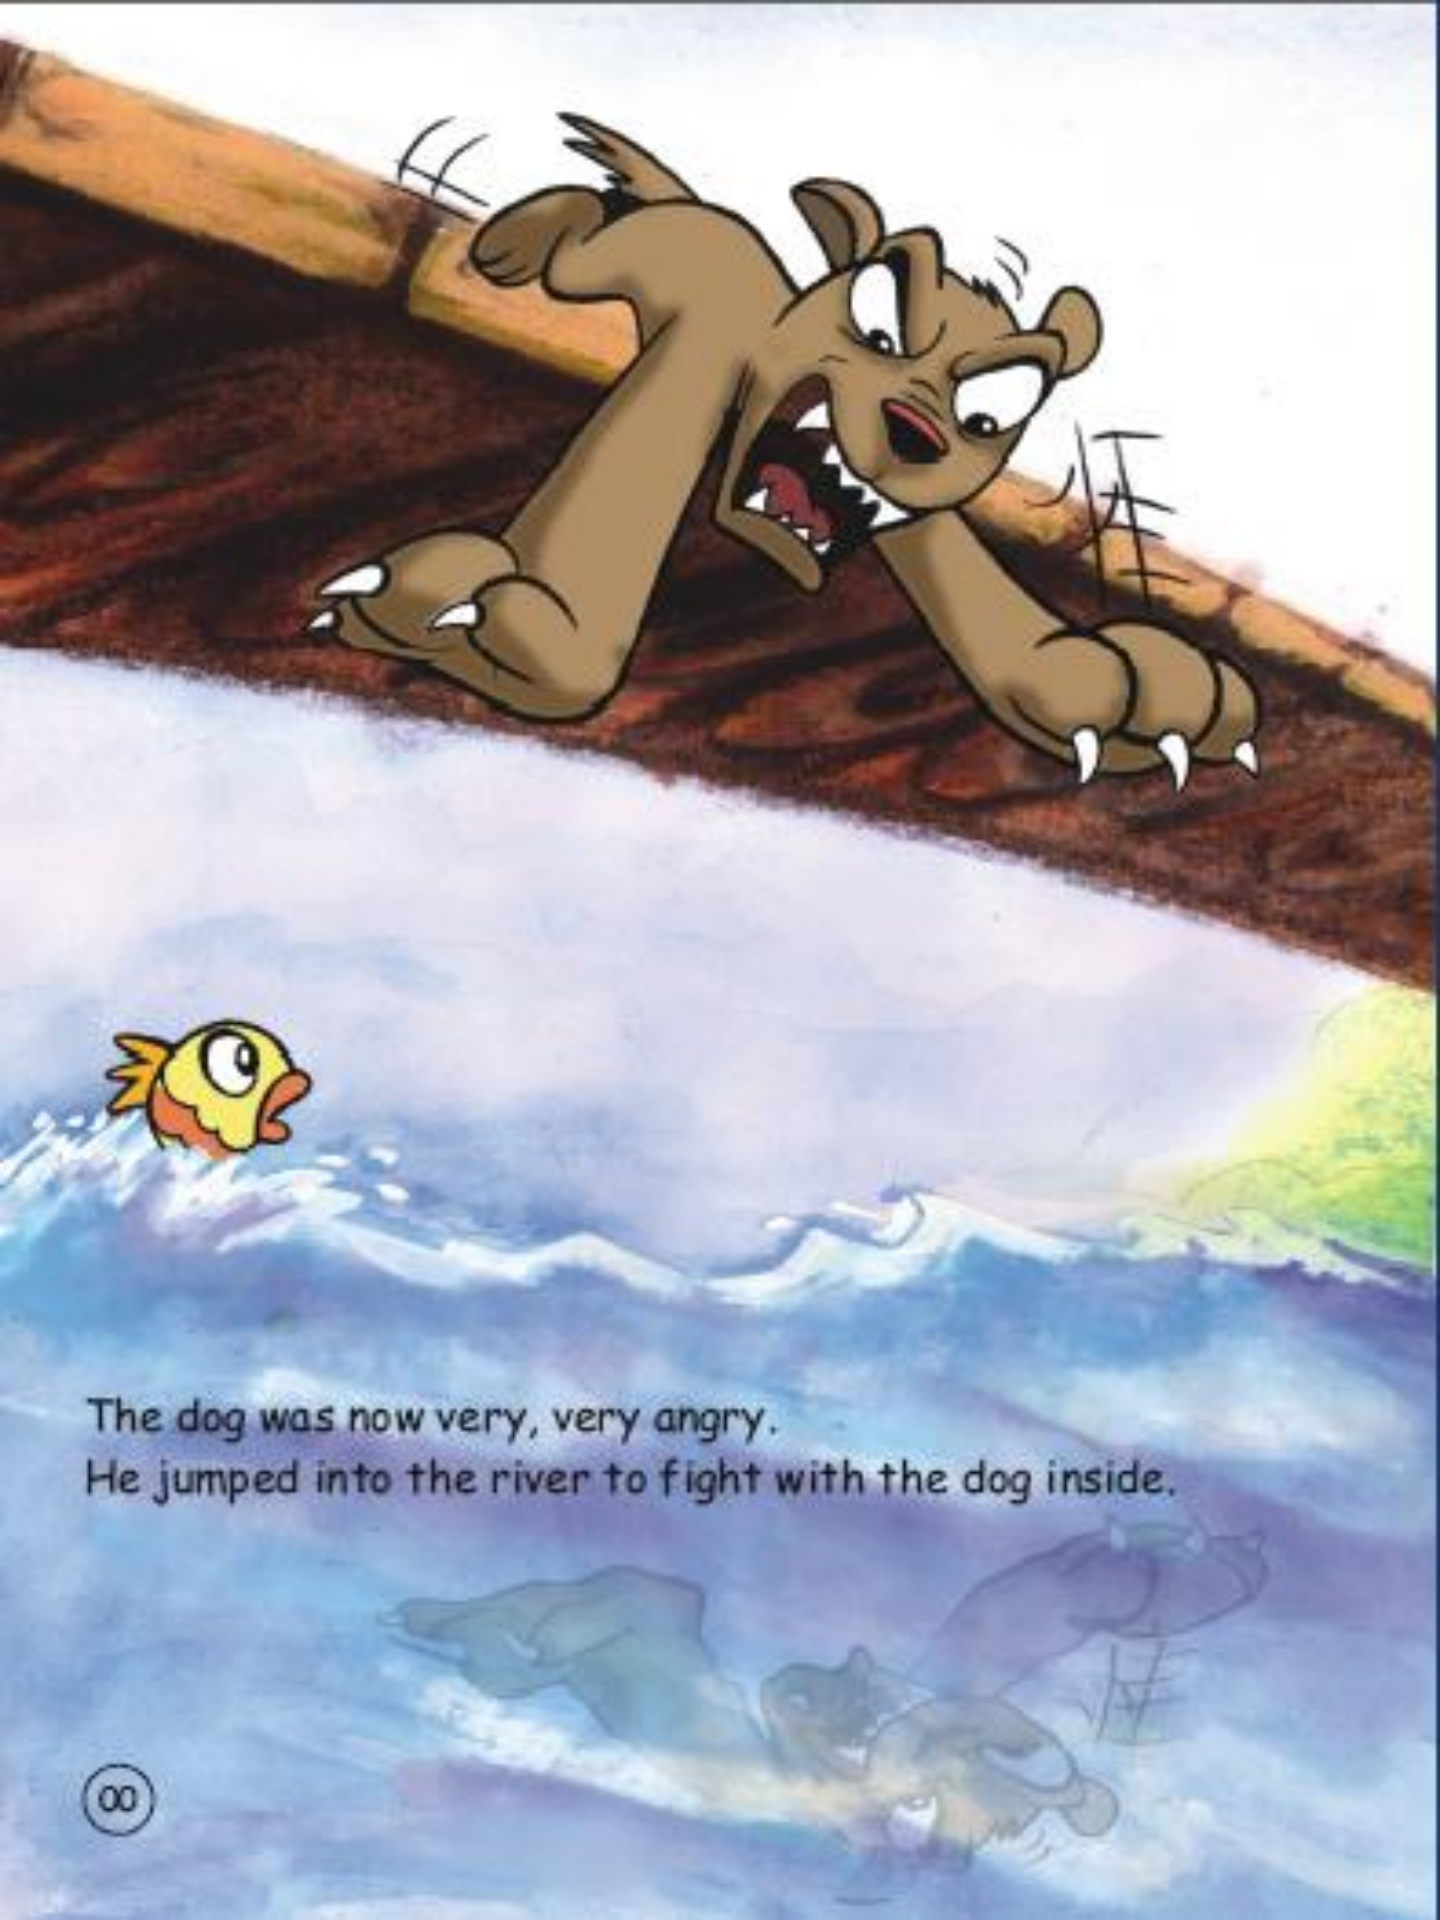

As he was a bad tempered dog he began barking.
He barked really loudly.
His reflection in the water looked as if it was barking back at him.

The dog got very angry. So he barked even louder. His reflection in the river looked as if it was barking loudly at him.

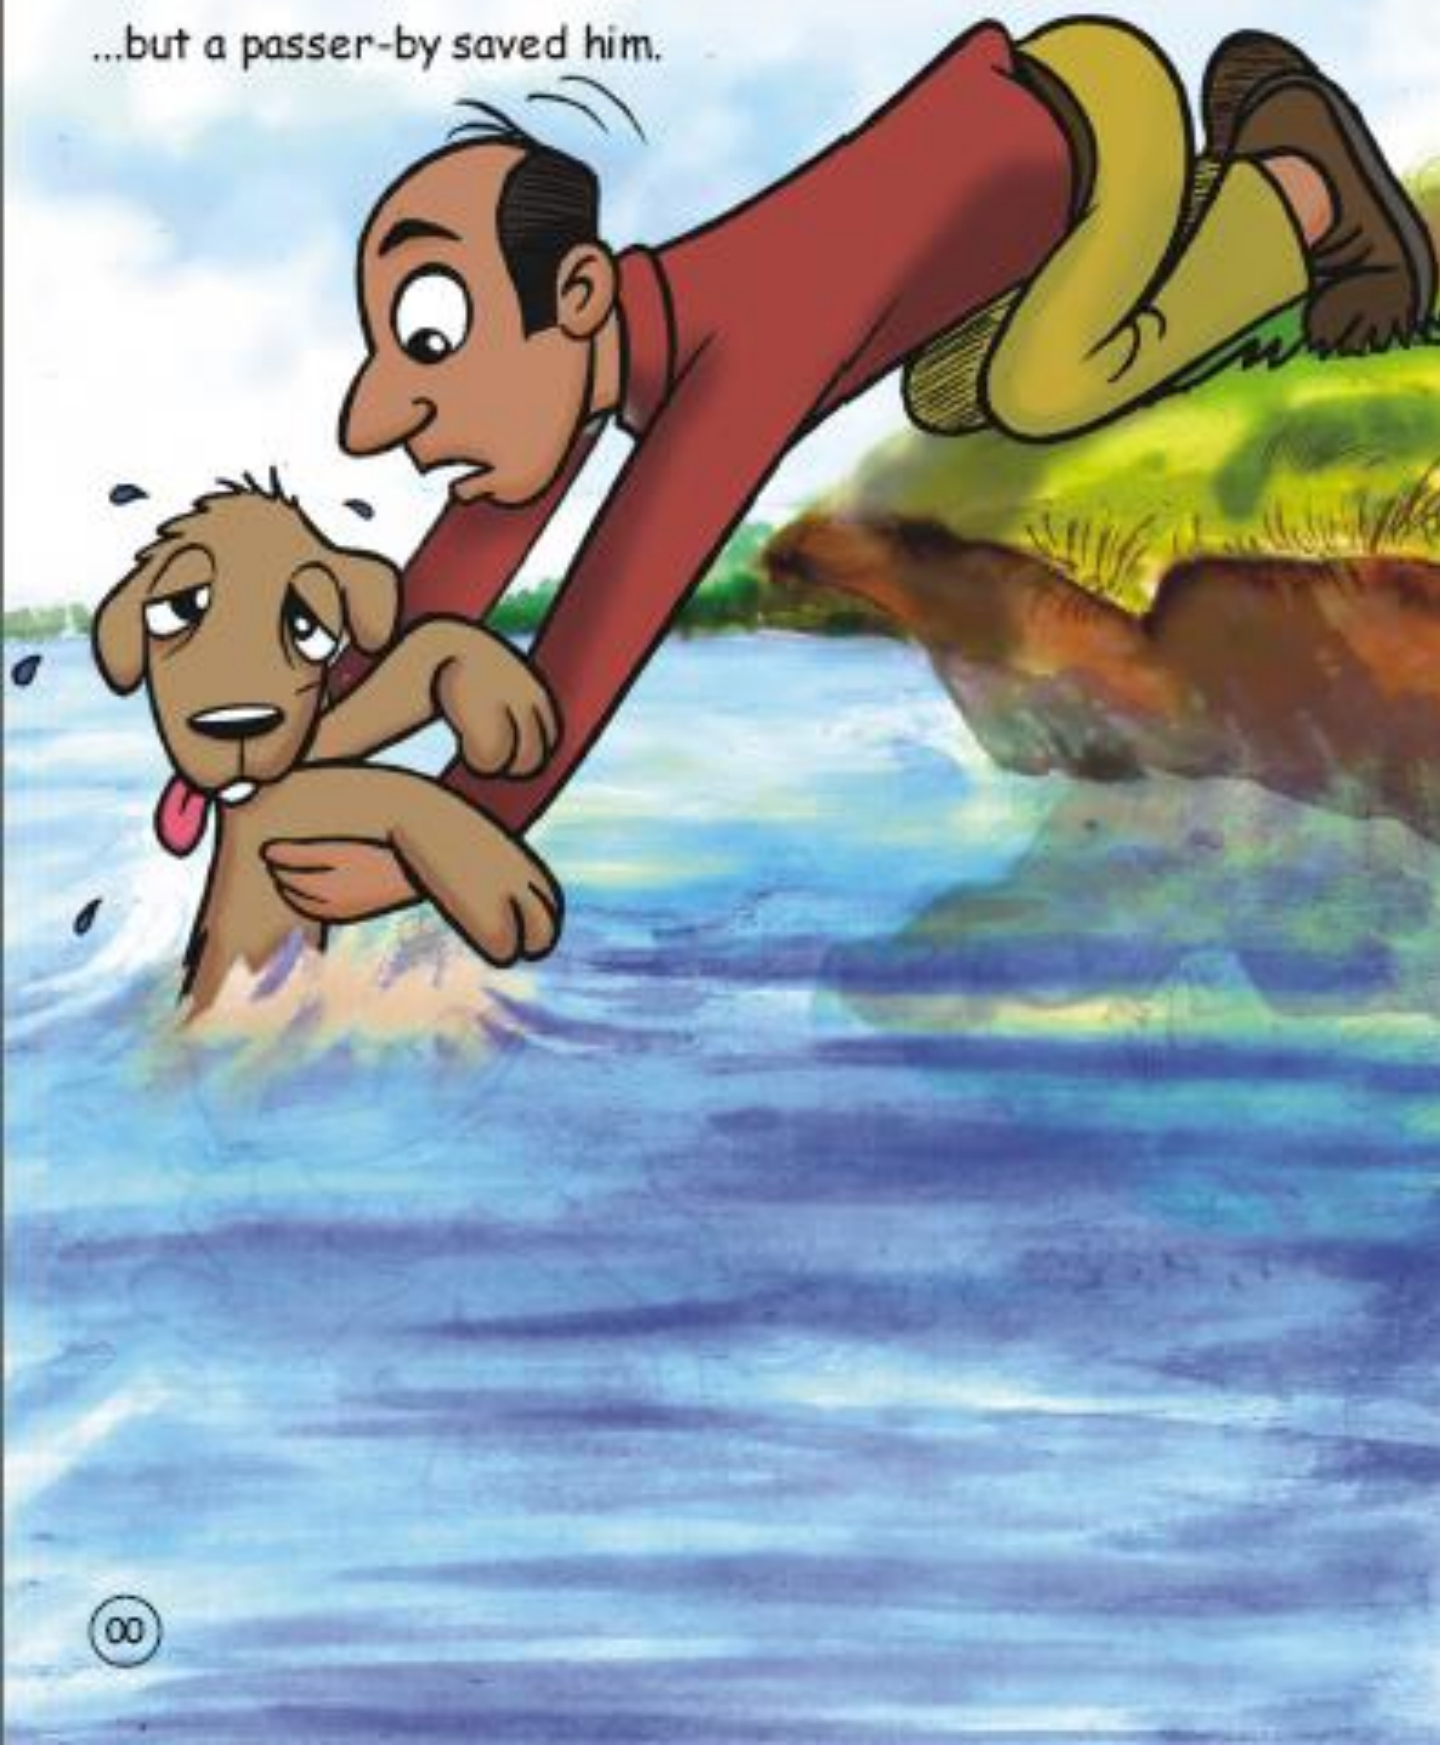

The dog was now very, very angry.
He jumped into the river to fight with the dog inside.

He still did not understand that it was his own reflection.
The poor fellow almost drowned...

...but a passer-by saved him.

From that day on the dog decided that he would never get angry again.

